investigating minority and indigenous women s rights in muslim majority states this book critically examines the human rights regime within international law based on extensive and diverse ethnographic research on amazigh women in morocco the book unpacks and challenges generally accepted notions of rights and equality significantly and controversially the book challenges the supposedly emancipatory power vested in the human rights project arguing that rights based discourses are sites of contestation for different groups that use them to assert their agency in society more specifically it shows how the very conditions that make minority and indigenous women instrumental to the preservation of their culture may condemn them to a position of subalternity in response and engaging the notion and meaning of islamic feminism the book proposes that feminism should be interpreted and contextualised locally in order to be effective and inclusive and so in order for the human rights project to fully realise its potential to empower the marginalised and make space for their voices to be heard providing a detailed empirically based analysis of rights in action this book will be of relevance to scholars students and practitioners in human rights policy and practice in international law minorities and indigenous peoples rights gender studies and middle eastern and north african studies
